Supervisor Peterkin Impressed By Enthusiasm At Band Clinic

LAC LA BICHE — The Band Clinic held in Lac la Biche during the last weekend in September was a successful affair according to reports from those taking part. Classes were under the direction of D. J. Peterkin of the cultural activities branch, with Leonard Whiteley of Edmonton as special instructor.

From the first session with the band on Friday night till the instructors left for the city at noon on Sunday the interest and co-operation of the local bandsmen was most gratifying. A total of 19 were registered for the course, including a class of six beginners who took instruction from Mr. Peterkin on the clarinet with a view to adding a clarinet section to the band. The clinic has created a renewed interest in the band, with the result that a waiting list of prospective members has developed. More instruments will be added when the band's financial position will permit. Practices are held regularly from 7:30 p.m. till 9:00 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays of each week.

The following is from a report received by the editor from the cultural activities branch of the department of the provincial secretary "Mr. D. J. Peterkin, supervisor of music for the cultural activities branch of the provincial secretary's department, was most impressed by the enthusiasm shown at the recent band clinic. In view of the comparatively recent start of the band, under the baton of Mr. F. Creighton, the standard already achieved is all the more creditable.

"Bands are most worthwhile leisure time activities for young and old alike. For young people particularly, playing in a band provides an interest which has importance as an educational and social benefit. One rarely finds delinquents among band members. In addition, towns fortunate in having bands find in them a focal point for community pride, and a publicity medium which can be effectively used to advertise the town elsewhere."

Home And School Get Acquainted

LAC LA BICHE — Following the summer recess, the first meeting of the Lac la Biche Home and School Association was held in the Dr. Swift school, Sept. 25. This meeting took the form of a Get-Acquainted meeting for new staff and parents.

F. McMillan showed a film on Atomic Energy and demonstrated to the audience the manner in which films are used for educational purposes in the class room.

Nick Chodin, who enjoyed a trip to Europe this summer, showed slides he had taken on his tour and also displayed souvenirs he had brought back.

The awarding of scholarships to deserving grade 9 and 12 students was discussed but tabled till the next meeting.

Mrs. Uganitz' room of grade 3's won the pennant for attendance of parents. Coffee and doughnuts concluded the evening.

Hon. E. W. Hinman Addresses C of C

LAC LA BICHE — The Hon. E. W. Hinman, provincial treasurer, addressed a meeting of the chamber of commerce held at the York Hotel banquet room Oct. 6, at 6:30 p.m.

Mr. Hinman also addressed a a public meeting sponsored by the Lac la Biche chamber of commerce in the Lac la Biche Memorial Hall that same evening.

Cash On Sidewalk Returned To Owner

LAC LA BICHE — An incident took place a few days ago, showing that not everyone is seeking easy money.

Inar Berthelson of Conklin found a considerable sum of money lying in a roll on the sidewalk in the business section of the town last week. He immediately turned it over to the town constables who lost no time in trying to find the owner, although the loss had not been reported.

By chance they located the owner, 80-year-old John Honka of Rich Lake, who had thought it such an impossibility of ever finding his money that he had not bothered to report it to the authorities. Mr Honka was greatly surprised and relieved when his money was returned to him intact.

Golden Rule Noted At Lac La Biche

LAC LA BICHE — In the rush and scramble of present day living, we often fear the spirit of neighborliness has been completely smothered by our seeming self-sufficiency and independence. But it is good to know that even yet, friends and neighbors can lay aside their own duties and see the needs of others.

It has been brought to our attention that a family, living in cramped quarters for several months, finally located a suitable home and were preparing to move as soon as the former tenant vacated.

To complicate matters, relatives were expected in just a few days. The family were nearly in despair but friends rallied, and as soon as the house was vacated, paint brushes started to fly and in a short time the rooms were freshly decorated, floors cleaned, some new linoleum laid, and furniture put in place. As the last drape was hung, the relatives arrived.

Needless to say the family were very grateful, and the friends had a deep sense of satisfaction.

We believe it was John Wesley who said, "Do as much good as you can, wherever you can, to everyone you can, as long as you can." It would make far a happier world, would it not?

"Have you had a kindness shown?
pass it on.
'Twas not meant for you alone,
pass it on.
Let it travel down the years, let it
wipe another's tears,
Till in heav'n the deed appears,
pass it on."

Fine Crops Seen In North Fields

LAC LA BICHE—Rosaire Gendron, who farms near Peace River town, was in this district for a few days buying heavy work horses for shipment to Montreal.

William Mills, a local farmer, helped to find suitable horses here and also went to Peace River with Mr. Gendron to bring back some horses left over from the last car shipped from there.

In the area travelled from St. Paul to Grimshaw some good crops were seen. Two of the best were a field of oats on the farm of Charles Gaberelle, Briereville, and a field of wheat a few miles west of Grassland. These fields were cut with binders and may give near record yields when threshed.

Priest Recalls Horrors Of Madame Tussard's Wax Museum In London

By Rev. J. E. McGrane

On checking over with the editors of the Lac la Biche Herald, we discovered that one of the despatches that I had sent from overseas must have got lost in the mails. This was the only one that had gone astray. However, I was fortunate enough on checking through my papers to find the carbon copies of the article, which was as follows. It was written in Tournai, Belgium and London, England.

Tournai lies on a bend of the great Roman road which ran from Cologne to Boulogne via Bavai. It developed suddenly thanks to the events on the Rhine into a place of great strategic importance. Many remains of former public or private buildings which were brought to light during recent excavations bear witness to this claim. Even as far back as the second half of the third century the town was visited by St. Piat. Here the Romans erected a Gynaecum, or cloth manufacturing centre for the army. This industry flourished for centuries and that is the origin of the famous Cloth Hall which was erected and which can still be seen, rebuilt, in the Grand Place, or town square.

What up and down existence this town has had. In 407 it took a licking at the hands of the Vandals and it had hardly recovered from this when Clodian took the town from the Romans, circa 442. As early as the foundation of the Kingdom of France, Tournai was part of it. In 1188, getting quite modern now, King Philip Augustus made the town almost free, though it was still attached to the Dominions of the Crown. In 1513, King Henry VIII of England for some reason or other, thought that he would like to have a summer residence somewhere on the Continent, so without any more to do, he came over and captured Tournai. They did not take to Old Henry over there, so to keep what he took he had to build large fortifications all around that part of the town he was particularly interested in. Parts of these walls may still be seen, but the round tower he used for a dungeon for locking up "them as would not do as they were told" is still standing in perfect condition. As a matter of fact you may still visit it at 5 francs per person per trip. I did visit it and in it there is a war museum containing a wonderful collection of arms, ancient and modern, a bust of Henry VIII and a marvelous display of the work of the Resistance Movement during the last war. It shows pictures of the leaders of the movement, both men and women. There

Laggard Student Policy Adopted By County Council Of Athabasca

The county council recently adopted a Laggard Student Policy to be effective September 1, 1959. Copies have been distributed to all teachers and parents concerned. Contents of the policy are as follows:

PREAMBLE

The school administration and the teaching staff are concerned about the type of student who does not put enough effort into his studies. It is felt that funds are being wasted on this student. Also, this type of student tends to lower the spirit and morale of the school. This problem must be resolved. An attempt to do so must follow some well defined policy. Accordingly, a policy is drawn up to deal with the "laggard" student. This will be known as the Laggard Student Policy.

DEFINITION

The laggard student shall be defined as one who is continually negligent in carrying out his duties in that he does not attempt to make a reasonable effort to achieve at a normal level of which he is capable.

APPLICATION

This policy shall apply to students who have reached the age of 15 years or over or who are in high school. This policy shall be apply students who are making an earnest effort to obtain passing grades.

RESPONSIBILITY

A committee of the whole staff that is teaching the student shall decide whether the student is laggard. Also, any other teacher who could in some way contribute may be included. This committee will consider every aspect of the case. They will encourage and help the student to make adjustments before applying the procedure toward suspension.

PROCEDURE

1. A warning letter to the parent and/or guardian shall be sent at the time of the first report card issue indicating that the student has been placed on the laggard list. The superintendent of schools shall be notified. (A copy of this policy to be enclosed).
2. A second warning letter (by registered mail) shall be sent to the parent and/or guardian during the last week in December. In this letter it shall be stated that unless the student shows improvement immediately a report will be submitted to the county council. The superintendent of schools shall be notified.
3. If no improvement is shown by the end of January the staff shall, after consultation with the superintendent of schools, present the case in the form of a recommendation to the county council for action. The student and the parents and/or guardian shall be notified of such action. The recommendation shall be either (I) that the student be suspended for the remainder of the school year or (II) that the student be suspended permanently.
4. The student and his parents and/or guardian shall be notified by the county council of the action taken. Also, a copy shall be sent to the principal of the school.

Problem Drinkers Often Nice People

By Walt Whitman

PART 7—in the series "Our Drinking Habits"

Some of our worst drinking is done by some of our best people. The old picture of the drunk as a bum stretched out on the curbstone is as out-dated as the stereopticon views of Grant's Tomb. Today the drunk is just as likely to turn up in the executive suite, or teaching law at the university, or in the research lab. In Chicago a company chairman recently picked one of his brightest young executives for promotion to the presidency. He invited the young man to his apartment so the announcement could be made at an intimate dinner of top stockholders. The young new president arrived at the chairman's home totally fried.

Fortunately he was a few minutes early. In consternation, the chairman led him to a bedroom, stretched him out and locked the door. Then he went on with the dinner, apologizing that an illness in the family had kept the new president from attending, and hoping desperately that a bellow from the nearby bedroom would not offer contradictory evidence.

Howard Whitman

Throughout the dinner the chairman smiled bravely, while perspiring in the fear that at any moment his choice for the company's helm would start pounding on the door or even punch it through and present his pickled head amid the fragments.

Recently, in New York, the wife of a company vice-president presented herself at the Alcoholism Information Center with a travel itinerary in her hand. It listed all the stops on her husband's forthcoming trip to branch offices, and she politely requested the name of an Alcoholics Anonymous contact and a good doctor in every

She explained, "My husband gets drunk just about every night at home. I'm afraid of what might happen on trips so I have to go along with him. And I think it makes sense to get up a list like this—just in case."

MOSTLY "NICE PEOPLE"

Of our souse drinkers only about 10% are Skid Row bums. The others are "nice people," with a sprinkling of high talent.

Of 2,000 males who checked in at nine alcoholic clinics throughout the United States, 1,400 (70%) were listed as men in "jobs involving skills or special responsibilities."

A study in Ontario, Canada, showed close to 6% of all alcoholics were managers and owners of businesses or professional men. And 60% were in skilled or white collar jobs in the upper income ranges.

Dr. Jackson A. Smith, of the University of Nebraska Medical School, comments, "The aggressive group (of alcoholics) have an unusual amount of energy, drive and physical stamina. They are inclined to 'overdo' any activity, including drinking . . . The ability and drive these men have frequently result in their being quite valuable to their firms and attaining positions of great responsibility."

"HIGH BOTTOMERS"

In drinking circles they're called "high bottomers." This means that though they hit bottom eventually, as most alcoholics do, the bottom

THE OLD PICTURE of the drunk as a bum stretched out on the curbstone is dated. Today the drunk is just as likely to show up in the executive suite, or teaching law at the university, or in a research lab, or in an art studio.

PFAA Inspectors Meet At Vermilion

By HENRY T. THOMPSON

The Prairie Farm Assistance held a school of instruction for inspectors at Vermilion in the Vermilion Agricultural School. Fifty inspectors attended largely from the south and south-eastern parts of the province where the drought appears to have severely affected the crops.

My observation of the crops between McRae and Vegreville and return by way of Willingdon would indicate a better than average crop for those parts. The Vilna area shows some especially heavy stands of stooks. East from Innisfree a marked thinning of stooks is noticeable until at Mannville and Vermilion stooks indicate a near drought appearance.

Reports from inspectors in the southern and eastern borders of Alberta south of Vermilion give a pessimistic estimate of the crop yield. Many parts of the southern parts of the province east from Drumheller and the American border predict many applications for assistance under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act. Drought conditions exist twenty miles south of Vegreville.

Graham Anderson, superintendent from Edmonton directed the proceedings and added information that applied to Alberta conditions.

A. A. Brown, superintendent from the Saskatchewan office at Regina, gave instruction on all phases of inspection work, his discourse was most enlightening. His explanations of the machinery under which the act is operated gave the inspectors a clear picture of what their duties required on the field to assist the eligible farmer to obtain assistance and help head office to process the forms. Mr. Brown emphasized the need for detailed information in respect to all questions in the cultivated acreage forms. Carelessness or ommission of vital information could place an eligible farmer out of his just rights and this is not what his department wishes.

Rodger Brown from the accountant's department at Regina dealt with the payment of accounts for inspectors as well as those under PFAA payments. In the matter of processing of accounts and the numbers of times a single report is handled revealed the necessity for exact and correctly tabulated reports.

Rudy Nundorf and Mr. Murhead are the two supervisors of two divisions of the province likely to require assistance.

Major Fane, MP from Vegreville, spoke briefly on the crop insurance plan by the dominion government that awaits the approval of the provincial governments, suggested the necessity of good public relations by men in the field.

Cliff Baldwin MP from Camrose, though handicapped by an alloted five minutes, compressed considerable enlightening information into his talk. He agreed with Major Fane on the importance of good public relations by fieldmen in their work, stressing the importance of the work, and care in its management.

Mr. Graham Anderson of the Edmonton office wound up the conference, praised the old inspectors for their work last year and added an appeal to his inspectors for full reports and careful attention to detail. His veiled hint to inspectors to avoid the beer parlors for reports by acting a wonderful characterization of an inebriated discontented critic of a PFAA inspector he meets in a beer parlor, brought the house down in an uproar of laughter. The point was well taken and I am sure no one could miss the implication of his humorous suggestion.

Health Through Chiropractic

An intelligent person who has lived rationally can grow old gracefully and enjoy every minute of it. A few simple rules of living will do wonders for folks past forty.

1. Slow Down. You may be able to go as fast as before, but if you do you are inviting old age to come prematurely. "Make haste slowly" if you would live longer, more useful life.

2. Avoid Fatigue. Fatigue produces poisons that injure the nervous system and hasten the onset of old age. When you are tired rest promptly and completely. To drive yourself to the point of exhaustion is to court disaster.

3. Learn to Relax. Let your muscles be as loose as possible; you will do your job more easily and save wear and tear on your nervous system. If you can lie down and rest during the day, even for 20 or 30 minutes you will lengthen the span of life.

4. Cultivate Patience. You can control yourself. Cultivate an unruffled attitude toward people, circumstances and your work. Be calm—learn to wait. Impatience is a handicap to good health.

5. Develop a Hobby. Do something different from your regular work to enliven your spare time. Play, read, take pictures, collect something, make something, or engage in some kind of activity interesting to you.

6. Watch for Danger Signals. Chronic indigestion, insomnia, headache and fatigue should not be considered middle-aged symptoms. They may be warning signals that your body needs attention—that you should see your Chiropractor.

7. Reseolve Not to Grow Old. People who live in the past grow old accordingly. Don't yearn for the return of "the good old days." Youth lives in the present and the future. Keep your mind young and elastic, and make middle-age the healthful, happy, productive time of life it can and should be.

DON'T GIVE FIRE A PLACE TO START!

ALBERTANS WARNED:

Little Things Can Cause Big Fires

217 Children Died In 1959; Most Fires Preventable, Statistics Show

Canada's 1958 dollar loss in fires amounted to over $115 000,000.

This represents only the cost in property and at that, excludes Forest Fire losses. The cost in lives is equally high with some 529 persons, 217 of them children, having died in fires during 1958.

Although it may be deeply buried in the past, a little tug at the memory will rekindle the sense of horror and anger you felt the last time you saw, heard or read about a fire which took lives, particularly lives of children.

Do you not remember the tragic holocaust at Our Lady of the Angels School in Chicago last year, when almost one hundred children perished? Many of them were found still sitting at their little desks.

It could have been your school and your children! Last year it happened in Chicago . . . where will it happen this year?

Fire Prevention Week is being observed this year from Oct. 4 to 10 inclusive. The Board Insurance Companies through the cooperation of Canadian Newspapers, Radio and Television Stations, Banks, Railways, Fire Departments, Commerce and Industry are spreading the gospel of Fire Prevention throughout the country.

These messages are directed at you, the potential victim of fire. Listen! Learn! and Remember!

Most fires (over 75%) are preventable. In other words, they are caused by carelessness! People, as a rule, are seldom careless about big or important things; it is the "little" things that they are inclined to gloss over quickly or forget and it is these "little" things that cause so many fires.

For example: Running a lamp cord under a carpet where unseen, it can become worn and frayed to the point of shortcircuiting . . . Replacing a blown 15 ampere fuse with one of a higher rating and thus inviting disaster from overheated wiring . . . Not bothering to have the furnace checked before starting it up for the winter because it "looks" alright . . . Buying and using electrical and other appliances that do not bear the Underwriters' Laboratories Label . . . Permitting rubbish to accumulate in attics or basements . . .

These "little" things, mentioned above, cause more than their share of fires, fires that must all be basically charged to carelessness!

How much longer can we afford to be careless with lives and property? Canada's per capita fire loss record is among the worst in the world and won't improve until you, as a citizen, practice the basic rules of Fire Prevention on a year-round basis.

Listen! Learn! and Remember!

is a very large map of the town showing the various points of sabotage, the instruments used for this and the methods undertaken for the harassing of the supply routes of the Germans, and samples of the bombs they made, etc. It must have been a terrible time here during the occupation . . . and most of use at this time here in Canada were sitting at home with enough to eat and no trouble keeping warm and clothed.

SHADES OF HENRY VIII

To get back to the shades of Henry VIII, in spite of the fact that he erected this great stronghold—the tower by the way, is 83 feet high and the walls 23 feet thick, he was only able to hang on to it for six years, for in 1519 there was another battle, a real counter attack, and once more the French colors were flying from the ramparts of Tournai.

In 1523, however, after a three week's siege, Tournai fell into the hands of Charles V. Even this was not the end for in 1566 the Iconoclasts carried destruction here. The death of Requessens, Governor of the Low Countries, of which Tournai was a part after the conquest by Charles V, caused the city to pass over to the States General, who were opposed to the legal government. Hence a siege began and after a two month's heroic defence the town opened its gates to the victorious troops of the Prince of Parma. This was in 1581.

Tournai was occupied in 1667 by Louis XIV who formed a parliament here but it was recaptured by the Allies in 1709 and was reoccupied by Louis XV in 1745 and ever since that time Tournai had to put up with so many treaties and such until a little over a hundred years ago when it became part of the Kingdom of Belgium. I suppose that after an history like that they would be able to put up with anything but after the last occupation during the 2nd Great War they did not pass into other hands and Tournai is still part of a gallant little nation. By the way, I could not help but notice how smart the Belgium soldiers are.

Their uniforms are of exceptional quality, neat and clean and you have to look close to distinguish the officers from the private soldiers and non coms. One afternoon, at 3 p.m., I left Belgium, with many pleasant memories, and that same evening I was back at Alberta House in London, England. This was the third country I had been in since leaving Tournai and the distance is not much greater than from Lac la Biche to Edmonton.

IT COULD ONLY HAPPEN IN LONDON

In the preceding article I told you, among other things, the experiences of Henry VIII in Tournai, Belgium and how it was that after having to put up with him for six years, the bourgeois told him that he had better pack up and spend his holidays at Blackpool or some other such place, and as he did not want to do this in a peaceful manner they all got together, had a little battle and got rid of him that way. They kept the tower however, as they had heard that they had one at Blackpool, so they decided to keep the one at Tournai for themselves.

After being away over a month on the Continent of Europe it was nice to get back to dear "Old Lunnon" and to throw my hat in at Alberta House again. Alberta House is not only a place where the lonesome Albertan can drop in and receive a great welcome, see pictures of Edmonton, Calgary and other familiar places on the walls, but it plays a very important role even in the industrial development of our Province.

Were it not for this representation of Alberta in the Nation's Capital we could have missed out in quite a number of projects that are now flourishing in the province. Alberta House is a vital cog in the industrial and diplomatic life of Alberta. By the way, if anyone reading this should come over to London, which these days is not unlikely, by all means visit Alberta House. The address is 37 Hill Street, Mayfair and the most convenient Underground is Green Park.

ALBERTA HOUSE

After my success of picture taking on the Continent I decided to take some pictures of London and one of Alberta House. Just as I was about to tak e the picture, I said to the receptionist, "you had better stand in the doorway, that would give a little color to the picture." She replied, "Now Father, that would not be fair, then who would look at Alberta House." You know, I think she had something there, but the best I could do was to get Newing, the chauffeur, who was polishing the brass plate outside, to pose while I took the snap.

One day, while riding on the Underground, I was reading the ads and notices along the top of the coach and came across the following: "If the weather is bad outside, in London you can spend a pleasant time inside visiting the museums." This is not an idle boast, for the museums in London rank with the best in the world. I visited many of them. They cover everything from prehistoric men to modern scientific achievement.

for them is a high bottom; they may simply be broken to fourth vice-president. They light out for A.A. then and there; they don't wait for Skid Row.

"Makes it a little difficult to treat them," says Paul S. O'Brien, former chairman of the Louisiana Commission on Alcoholics. "They say to us, 'How can I be an alcoholic when I'm so successful?' And the truth is they're often more successful than the man who's trying to help them.

"We've had a law professor, a high state official who could have been governor, a millionaire auto dealer, and a man who flew to A.A. meetings in his private plane."

The actual cost of excessive drinking to business is a moot point. The National Council on Alcoholism estimates the total number of alcoholic wage earners at 2,000,000 (about 3% of all job holders). They miss an average of 22 work days a year due to drinking. This gives a gross of 352 million man hours lost, which, converted into money, accounts for what is often called industry's "billion dollar hangover."

NOT SO, MAKERS SAY

To this the makers of liquor say hogwash. They doubt that drinking costs industry anywhere that much. R. E. Joyce, president of the Licensed Beverage Industries, holds that only ½ of 1% of our wage-earners are alcoholics—and if this is true all the damage can be cut to one-sixth of what most students of alcoholism say it is.

Certainly one reason for difficulty in collecting the figures is that people rarely go boozing around the office. The alcoholic professor does not step to the blackboard with chalk in one hand and a Scotch mist in the other, nor does the alcoholic physicist swill his bourbon openly from a laboratory beaker.

Drinking on or before the job is a camouflage operation. Drinkers have been known to douse their hair with heavily perfumed tonics, hoping to overwhelm the odor of alcohol on their breaths. Others take to concoctions without fragrance (it's not the alcohol in whiskey that's detected on the breath, it's the flavoring). Some have perfected the art of talking downward or out of the side of the mouth, aiming the strong breath off target.

Many an alcohol has worked years for a company without being spotted. The medical director of an aircraft plant in California tells of a plant supervisor (a personal friend of his) who failed to show up one Monday. On his home visits to other absentees, the doctor called at this man's house. He found him on an alcoholic binge.

COMPLETELY FOOLED

"I was completely fooled," the doctor remarked. "Never suspected he was a compulsive drinker. It just happened that I went to his home to see if he had been in an accident. Lucky I found out because now I can help."

Dr. George H. Gehrmann, former medical director at the DuPont Company, said in a speech to the Industrial Medical Association, "I am amazed at the number of industries where they say, 'Alcoholism is not a problem to us,' but as I get around in the Alcoholics Anonymous organizations in their industries, I find they have a large number of A.A.'s they know nothing about."

Many industries have awakened in recent years. They used to fire the drunks. Unions have awakened, too. They used to deny that drunks were drunks. Today, both frequently join with doctors and A.A. to recognize that drunks are people, often immensely valuable people, and can be saved by a helping hand.

A PIONEER

The Consolidated Edison Co. in New York pioneered in 1952 with an alcohol consultation clinic at the New York University - Bellevue Medical Center. It has since been joined by 16 other companies including the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and the New York Times. In Chicago 130 companies refer drinking problems to Portal House, a community alcoholic-aid center.

Allis - Chalmers, of Milwaukee, used to have a firing rate of 95% for alcoholics. It now is 8%. It's "alcoholic counselor service," fashioned on A.A. lines, has reduced drunk absenteeism some 60% thus saving the company $80,000 a year. "We couldn't afford not to have an alcoholism program," says Employee Services Manager Henry Mielcarek.

Today most businessmen recognize compulsive drinking as a personality problem which responds better to treatment than to ostracism. Most feel "There, but for the Grace of God, drink I."

Lola Badry And John Wolstenholme Seal Wedding Vows With Two Rings

LAC LA BICHE—St. Catherine's Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a lovely fall wedding when Miss Lola Lillian Badry became the bride of Mr. John Hyde Wolstenholme.

Father L. Viel performed the double-ring service for the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Badry and the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wolstenholme, all of Lac la Biche.

Pink and white carnations, asters and zinnias decorated the church for the occasion.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was radiant in a three-quarter length gown of lace and net over taffeta, the bouffant skirt featured a bustle effect in the back, fashioned of net ruffles. The bodice was styled with lily-point sleeves and a scalloped neckline, trimmed with sequins. A chapel veil was held in place by a crown of pearls. The bride's only jewelry was pearl earrings, a gift of the groom. She carried a white prayer book centered with pink roses and streamers.

Attending the bride were her sister Louise as maid of honor, Miss Josephine Farnari, Miss Lillian Zinko and Miss Phyllis Kozak, bridesmaids; Kim McHary of Edmonton, cousin of the bride, flower girl and Ricky McLea of Okotoks, nephew of the groom, ringbearer. The bridesmaids and maid of honor wore similarly - styled dresses of lace over taffeta with matching headpieces in shades of pink and blue respectively, with bouquets of carnations and mums en tone. The flower girl in white carried a dainty basket of white daisies and yellow baby mums.

The groom was attended by Mr. Jacques Tremblay, Mr. Leopold Langevin, Mr. Ronnie Polowich and Mr. David Gatzke. Mr. Paul Rudiger and Mr. Victor Michetti were ushers.

During the service the choir sang two selections and Mrs. C. Hamel sang "Beloved Mother," in English, and "Adorote Devote" in Latin. Mrs. M. Maccagno played the wedding music.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Badry chose a rosewood silk sheath dress with navy accessories and pink roses en corsage.

The groom's mother wore a two-piece ensemble in brown with beige accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

A buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride's parents for the wedding party and out-of-town guests immediately following the marriage service.

Later a reception for 350 guests was held in the Memorial Hall. Mr. M. Maccagno was master of ceremonies and proposed a toast to the bride. Mr. Leopold Langevin proposed a toast to the groom.

For a honeymoon trip by car to Whitehorse, Yukon, the bride chose a beige suit with brown accessories.

On their return the young couple will make their home in Lac la Biche.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. J. McHardy, grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. N. McHardy and Terry, Mr. and Mrs. J. McHardy Jr., Mr. and Mrs. L. Phillips and Mr. J. R. Nixon, all of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. Wendall Badry of Forestburg; Mrs. Eugene Kroetch of Camrose; Mrs. Dorothy McLea, Okotoks; Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Wolstenholme, Whitehorse; Mr. and Mrs. T. Carvel, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Stan Kelly and family, of Jasper, and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Hall of Wainwright.

Grassland Holds First Initiation

By Gail Karpetz

The Grasland High School looked quite different one day recently. This was due to the odd-looking initiates who had never before been experienced in our school. This year was the first time in the history of the Grassland High that initiation was held.

The initiates, the Grade 10s, were garbed in the following items of clothing. Girls: men's overalls inside out and buttoned with nails, with one pant-leg rolled to the knee and the other down; a nylon and a high heel on the leg with the rolled-up pant-leg and a woolen stocking and a flat-heeled shoe on the leg with the pant-leg down; men's shirts; hair braided on one side and pincurled on the other. The girls were not allowel to wear any makeup.

Boys: a skirt, sweater or blouse on backward; twine tied around the waist; one running shoe and one ordinary shoe; lipstick; necklace; earrings; ribbon in their hair.

The initiates were required to kneel before the seniors and say "I hail thee, oh great master," and had to do as they were told.

In the evening a party, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Orest Luchka two of the school's teachers, was held in the gymnasium. The evening was spent playing games, dancing and hula-hoop spinning. Later, lunch was served and the enjoyable party ended at 12:00 midnight.

From here we passed on to Alberta with a stopover at Winter, Sask., for a meeting on Oct. 5 and then one at Amisk on Oct. 6 and back to Boyle for Oct. 9 to 11.
